MANATEE GLENS HONORS EMPLOYEES

(Bradenton, FL)...Manatee Glens has named Steve Blouse, data analyst, as the 2014 NOVA Award winner. Named for the star that shines 15,000 times brighter at certain points in its life, the Manatee Glens NOVA Award acknowledges an extraordinary stellar effort made by an employee or team toward fulfilling our goals, values, and mission. He was selected among eight finalists.

The person who nominated him said: “He is the go to person when data is needed. He is kind, approachable and has a fun and engaging way to make you feel comfortable talking about data and reporting needs. He is the perfect match for his job; his ready smile and quick laugh put you at ease and make you glad to be working with him.” Blouse is recognized for his expertise in process analysis and ability to streamline workflow.

“Steve is the ideal example of a stellar employee who makes transformational change through his day-to-day work, and he does it all with a smile,” stated Manatee Glens President/CEO Mary Ruiz.

The other finalists were clinical systems analyst Connie Insley; behavioral health technician Troy Jefferson; maintenance assistant Brian Loughlin; behavioral health technician Connie Masias; unit clerk Natasha Smith; case worker Natalie Van-Reenen and Manatee Glens Walk-In Center manager Charles Whitfield. Each was recognized for their skills as well as dedication, service and extraordinary attitudes.

Manatee Glens is Your Community Behavioral Health Hospital, serving the area since 1955.
